

NEX Exchange Fact Sheet

PLUS Markets was bought in November 2012 by the world's leading interdealer broker, ICAP for £500,000 and was re-launched and renamed the ICAP Securities & Derivatives Exchange (ISDX). This was then renamed in December 2016 to NEX Exchange. The exchange is one of two Recognised Investment Exchanges in the UK, with the other being the London Stock Exchange. NEX Exchange allows companies to raise capital on the primary market and investors to trade in these companies on an active secondary market.

LIQUIDITY

NEX Exchange-listed securities are quoted on the exchange and include companies such as Shepherd Neame and Newbury Racecourse Plc. However, these shares should still be considered illiquid as dealing in large numbers may be difficult and prices may be unfavourable to the investor.

HOW ARE THE COMPANIES REGULATED?

The majority of NEX Exchange listed companies are UK registered and, therefore, subject to all UK company legislation. In addition, all constituents must comply with the NEX Exchange rules which are prescribed under section 118 of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000.

CAN I TRADE NEX EXCHANGE QUOTED SHARES THROUGH REDMAYNE BENTLEY?

Yes. Redmayne Bentley is a member (Broker Dealer) of NEX Exchange. For further information please contact our Dealing Room on 0113 243 6941 or alternatively contact your local Redmayne Bentley office. Our standard charges apply, see www.redmayne.co.uk/terms.

MORE INFORMATION

Specific company information can be found at www.nexexchange.com which provides the latest financial results and links to company websites where available.

Investments and income arising from them can fall as well as rise in value and you may lose some or all of the amount you have invested. Please note that shares on the NEX Exchange market must be viewed as high risk and both dealing and cash flow in NEX Exchange securities can be illiquid.
